GRANITE COMPOSITE FACTS

Granite composite sinks offer a sturdy construction while still maintaining their impressive appearance. They can withstand the grueling conditions of today's heavy pots and pans while adding a modern flare to your kitchen.

Granite composite sinks are manufactured using a mix of granite stone dust and acrylic resins molded into a sink form. They are fabricated under high pressure conditions making them nonporous and sanitary. Unlike natural granite, a granite composite sink surface won't require sealing.

While it can stand up to scratches and heat, granite composite does require careful maintenance to keep up its appearance. Wash it daily with a nylon brush in a circular motion to help prevent stains. Dry it with a micro fiber cloth after daily use to help avoid stains from hard-water deposits.

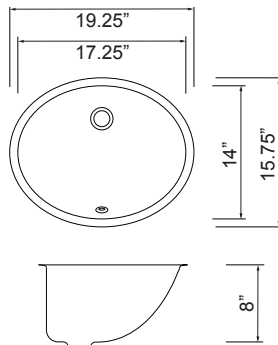

Never use abrasive powders or pads on a granite composite sink — they will dull and scratch the surface, making it more susceptible to stains.

Overall, you can find a wide range of styles, sizes, shapes, finishes, and color options to complement your new countertop. This compact-construction material brings cutting-edge style to any kitchen!

EVOLUTION OF SINKS

Before modern plumbing, water was manually carried to and from nearby rivers, streams, ponds and wells. By the Late 18th century washstands had already been introduced. They were small tables usually made of wood, metal or stone and usually had a large bowl on top with a pitcher of water inside of it. Sometimes, there was a hole in the middle of the table where the large bowl rested. This led to the creation of dry sinks.

By the Late 18th century washstands had already been introduced.

Toward the end of the 18th century they were lined with zinc or lead and in the early 1900's, steel, granite composite and enamel sinks were in line to replace wood, zinc or lead-lined sinks. By the 1930's, a combination of chromium and nickel (commonly known today as 18/10 or 304 steel) was used because it was rust resistant, easier to clean and overall easier to maintain. These designs are still being used today.

EVOLUTION OF FAUCETS

Faucets have been around since roman times, as early as 1700BC. Romans have a reputation for living luxuriously, which is probably why they had personal bathrooms with lead piping while their public baths included silver faucets with gold and marble fixtures. However, during those times, faucets could only be run at one temperature.

By 1937, temperature adjusting faucets were introduced, making life much easier. In 1945, a mechanism was created to help blend water for temperature control. As time went on, many designs were created to improve the functionality of faucets, including extendable faucet heads and motion detection.

Faucets have been around since roman times, as early as 1700BC.

FROM THE CEO

As you can probably tell from some of the literature in this booklet, we are very passionate about what we do. Our business originated on the road, visiting clients in mobile showrooms. This allowed us to establish mutually beneficial relationships and earn much appreciated business. Through the years, we have built a very strong reputation for setting high standards in the way we conduct our business.

We go above and beyond for our trade partners and that is one of our team's strong suits. What started out as a small operation in a 1500 square foot warehouse, has grown into four warehouses and multiple traveling showrooms. Silver Lake has enough stock and resources to assist you with any project, no matter the size.

If you are currently working with us, we thank you and welcome any feedback you may have. If you are considering getting in touch with us for the first time, we look forward to hearing from you.

Please join us in building meaningful connections that will last a life time.

Sincerely,

Gregory Yusupov
President and CEO

SINK CARE AND MAINTENANCE

Silver Lakes stainless steel sinks are made from a heavy gauge, type 304 (1 8/10), stainless steel for maximum durability. It is composed of 18% chromium (for shine) and 10% nickel (for rust resistance). Stainless steel is an extremely durable surface; it can, however, be scratched or scuffed. When scuffing does occur, please remember that this is normal and the effect will become uniform with age.

Recommended Daily Care

Regular cleaning is important to maintain the appearance of your sink. Wipe with a soft, soapy cloth, rinse; and dry after every use. Towel drying everyday after use is important to prevent mineral build upon the surface of your sink.

Scratching

The surface scratches which appear on stainless steel sinks rarely have any appreciable depth and will become less noticeable with time. A stainless steel sink will develop a patina with time and will look better a year after installation than during the first few months of use due to the fact that the scratching will have evened out.

Tough Stains and Rust

Stains and rust can generally be avoided with the daily care recommendations above. Most stains are a result of water-borne minerals. Rust stains are a result of iron particles from an outside source (EX, water, cookware, etc.). Never use steel wool to clean your stainless steel sink. Steel wool pads leave tiny particles that will develop into rust spots. Nylon pads with an iron free abrasive polishing compound is the best way to reduce the appearance of scratches. Stainless steel is, by itself, metallurgically incapable of rusting. Always rinse thoroughly after using any cleaner.

What To Avoid

- Chlorine or Bleach will attack stainless steel and can cause staining if left for an extended amount of time.
- Silver cleaners contain acids which attack stainless steel and leave a permanent stain.
- Certain foods, when left for prolonged periods, can cause pitting and corrosion. Examples are citric fruit juices, salt, vinegar, mustard, pickles, and mayonnaise.
- Strong acids can damage stainless steel. If they come in contact with the sink, they should be washed away immediately with clean water.
- Steel wool pads are not recommended for cleaning stainless steel sinks.
